Invitation to Comment (SPR05-18)

Title	Application for Emergency Protective Order (revise form EPO-001)
Summary	The Application for Emergency Protective Order (form EP-001) would be revised to eliminate some confusing references to workplace violence and civil harassment.
Source	Civil and Small Claims Advisory Committee Hon. Elihu M. Berle, Chair
Staff	Patrick O'Donnell, Committee Counsel, 415-865-7665 patrick.o'donnell@jud.ca.gov
Discussion	This Proposal An application for an emergency protective order may be prepared by law enforcement in a case involving domestic violence, child abuse, and elder or dependent adult abuse. An application may also be prepared in a workplace violence or civil harassment case if the case involves stalking. A Judicial Council form application and order has been adopted for use in all such cases. This proposal would revise the Application for Emergency Protective Order (CLETS) (form EPO-001) to eliminate the references to civil harassment and workplace violence on the form and the footers. Rationale for Proposal Form EPO-001 was adopted to implement the laws on emergency protective orders. (See Fam. Code, § 6240 et seq. &amp; Pen. Code, § 646.91.) Family Code section 6250 authorizes the issuance of ex parte emergency protective orders in cases involving a danger of domestic violence, child abuse or abduction, or elder or dependent adult abuse. That statute does not extend to cases involving civil harassment or workplace violence. However, ex parte emergency protective orders are also authorized under Penal Code section 646.91, where a peace officer asserts reasonable grounds to believe that a person is in immediate and present danger of stalking. This statute further provides that an emergency protective order may include a harassment protective order described in Code of Civil Procedure section 527.6 or a workplace violence protective order described in section 527.8. Thus, if a case involves stalking, an emergency protective order may be granted in a civil harassment or a workplace violence case. The present emergency protective order form does not indicate sufficiently clearly the distinction between the emergency orders issued under the Family Code in domestic violence and child or elder abuse cases and those issued under the Penal Code in civil harassment and workplace violence cases. The form distinguishes between these types of cases by indicating that the emergency protective order may concern “stalking (including workplace violence or civil harassment).” But this may mislead persons—including the police officers who use the application form—to think that the order applies to all forms of civil harassment or workplace violence, and not just those involving stalking.

A court commissioner who uses the form has expressed concern that the references to civil harassment and workplace violence on form EPO-001 are confusing. She has suggested that the form be revised to delete the specific references to workplace violence and civil harassment, while retaining the statements concerning stalking.

To clarify the form, the proposal would leave the term stalking in the form, but remove the references to “civil harassment” and “workplace violence” in the text and footers of the form.

A copy of revised form EPO-001 is attached at pages 3–4.
